My name is Ivan Mokrooussov, and I am excited to be applying to the Database Analyst position posted on the Indeed website. I am a recent graduate of the Durham College and have a Diploma in Computer Programming. During my studies, I have developed a special interest in database managements and administration. I believe I can bring my personal skills, dedication and loyalty with this position as well as develop my career path towards greater knowledge and experience.

I am in a process of launching a new career. I have previously been working primarily within the food and beverage industry, I have gained valuable experience in the management of operations, built on my customer service skills as well as developing interpersonal communication skills and overall business management. I also have a background in engineering and bring an experience in supporting business development initiatives and presenting information to stakeholders.

Despite recent economic challenges, I was able to develop a new passion for computer programming and especially database management. I am going to use all my skills, personal experience, and positive attitude to be successful in the new role. I consider myself a hardworking, confident individual with a strategical point of view, constantly working to solve problems efficiently and effectively, while implementing new plans and ideas for future operations. I always have an objective to learn new things, welcome growth opportunities and thrive in a constantly changing environment.

You state in your job listing that you are looking for someone able to form strategies, resolve conflicts, implement new processes and with an emphasis on personal client engagement. I believe myself to be a great candidate that would do everything possible to be successful in the new role.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to meeting with you to discuss my application further.

Yours sincerely,

Ivan Mokrooussov
